INDIAN 1977
ARKANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY
VOLUME 54

TIMES WERE, WHEN . . .

*. . . long before anyone was around, hours and hours of practice were needed to breed
perfection,
. . . hassles were just a part of college life, and enjoyment had to wait for later in the day,*

*... meeting old friends and making new acquaintances
sometimes had to wait in favor of more important tasks at hand,
... interesting things were always around to occupy leisure time, to keep things from falling into a usual, almost hum-drum
routine,*

... school spirit was an important key to success, even with occasional problems between students and administrators,

... seasonal changes had to rush to keep up with the fast-paced changes taking place on campus,

*... sharing the good times with that one favorite person was as important a part of college life
as the everyday traditions,
... at least sometimes, from everyone's need to spend time alone emerged gatherings with a common goal in mind,*

*... thinking and mapping out courses of study took a lot of our time, but paid for themselves with rich feelings of accomplishment,
... college life was fun, sad,
good and bad – whenever and wherever it happened, the Indian 1977 recreates it as it was.*

Spring spectacles

Spring, 1976

USA sweeps SGA elections

Celebration among the ranks of the United Student Alliance Party was fully warranted after final election results were posted. The victorious USA Party captured every one of the 35 Student Government Association positions. After weeks of campaigning on both sides, election day attracted a relatively low voter turn out. Steve Green was elected SGA president. Other top officers were Tom Strickland, first vice president and second vice president, Cathy Choate.

Spring, 1976

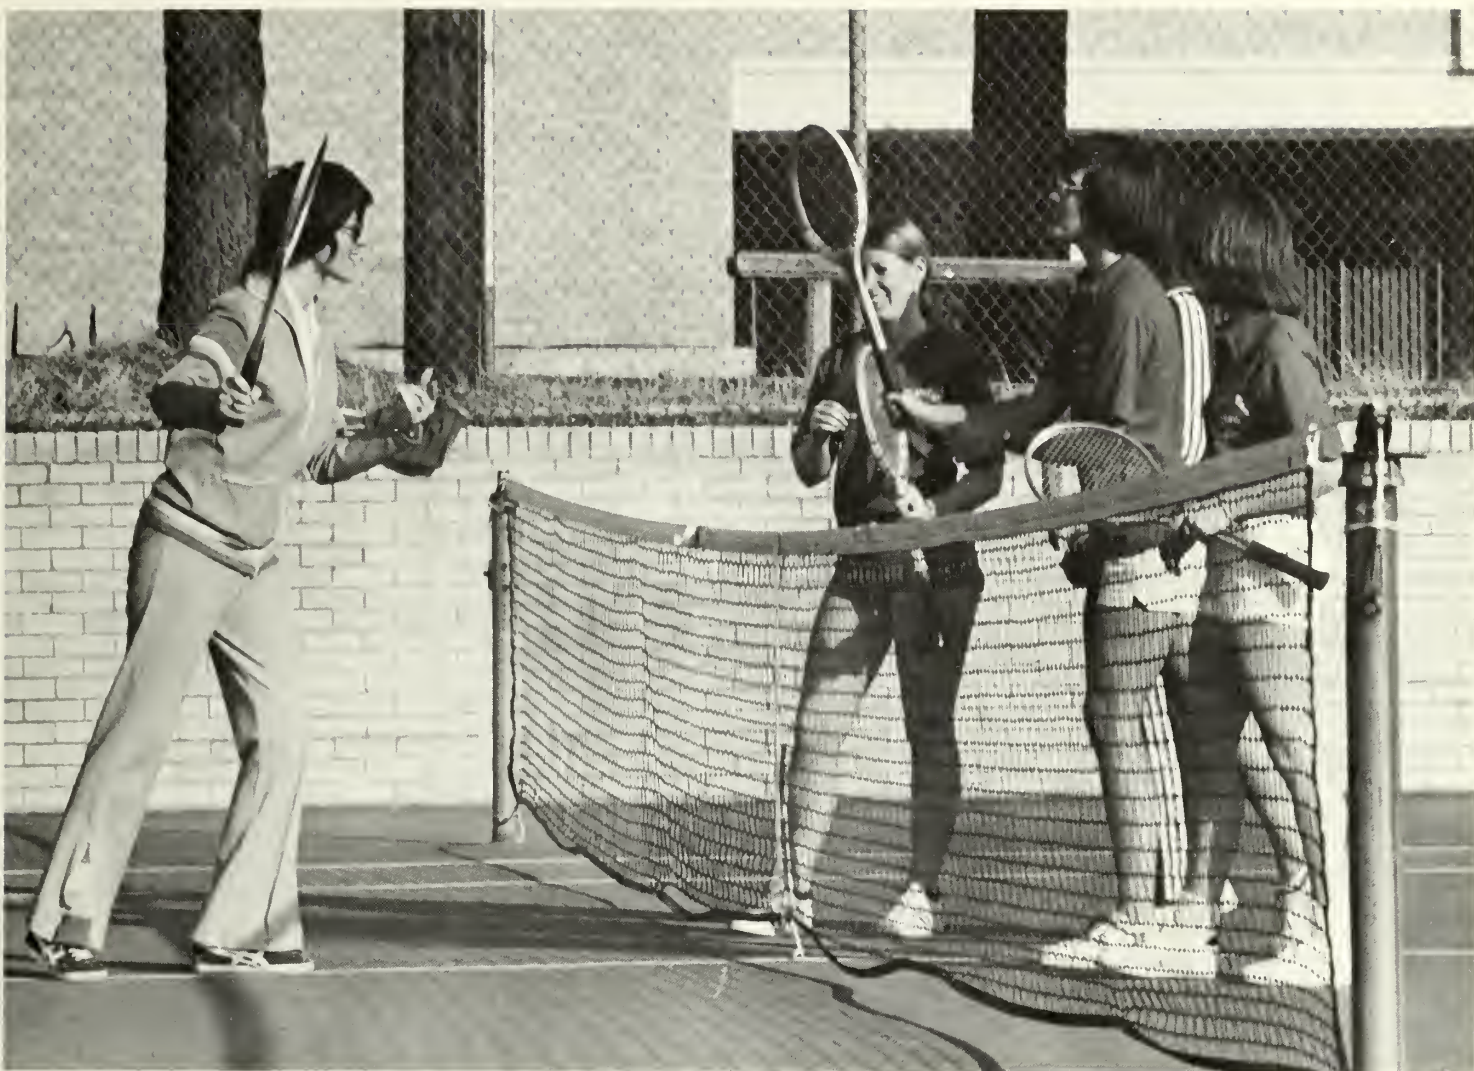

Gridders, cagers search for new leadership

While Bill Davidson was hunting for a new quarterback, Athletic Director Dean Pryor found Marvin Adams to head a new Indian basketball program. Gone were David Hines from the gridiron and John Rose from the hardwood. Eventually, successors were found for both, but not before long, delicate searching-out processes were completed. Both were expected to be better squads for the trouble.

Spring, 1976

Netters use rebuilding years for future improvements

Disappointing 4-9 and 2-10 seasons left the Indian men's and women's tennis teams looking for improvements in the future. Upperclassmen Jim Forrester and Harry Barringer paced the Tribe's fifth place Southland Conference finish, while the Tomahawks' lone senior, Faye Cromwell, played her last season as the top woman netter. Aside from Cromwell, Tommie coach Kay Woodiel fielded an entirely-freshman team. Men's coach Paul Balducci left his initial season in search of more refined talent for another year.

Spring, 1976

Diamond Tribe uses early start as season's springboard

Long hours of lonely practice sent Arkansas State University's Indians to the baseball field in preparation for Coach J. A. "Ike" Tomlinson's final year at the helm. Gearing for his 33rd diamond campaign, Tomlinson took the team on an early trip to Pan American University that netted sparse victories over top competition, more frequent losses due to inexperience and, more often than not, a chance for early-season game experience that the Tribe had not had in previous years. It was to pay off in the long run – down the home stretch.

Track surprises outlived even diehard expectations

Guy Kochel must have known his 1976 Arkansas State University track team was good, but he could not have known just how good they would eventually turn out to be. Fresh from a sparkling indoor season, sprinter Ed Preston left little doubt in the early meets as to who was the king of the straightaway, while fans present at the first outdoor meet of the spring received the additional treat of watching favorite son Earl Bell glide over 18-3½ then try for a new world record in the event he ruled – the pole vault. Records, both state and school marks, fell like a pouring rain throughout the year.

Spring, 1976

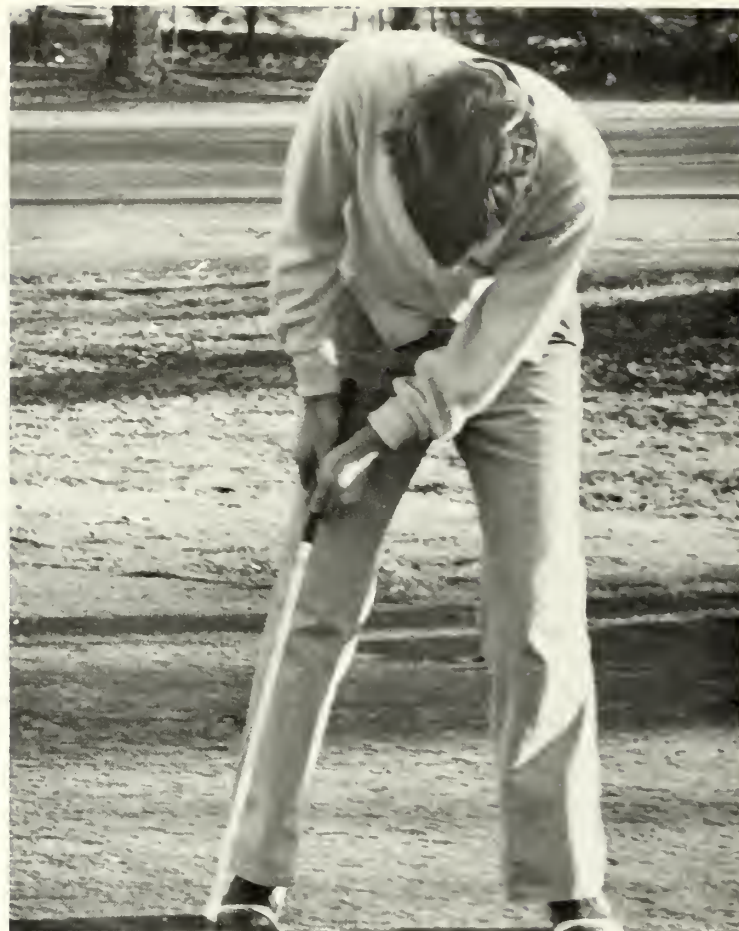

Arkansas State University's first Invitational Track Classic was a smashing success, with the likes of Kansas University, Western Kentucky, Notre Dame and host A-State. Second-ranked Kansas won the meet, WKU thrilled fans with its distance aces, but the overflow crowd at the new ASU Track and Field Complex watched the Indians' own Ed Preston steal the sprint races, a double win and the meet's Most Valuable Performer award. For a new event envisioned by Indian chief Guy Kochel, the Classic was a tremendous success – and the Tribe's surprising second-place finish made the final outcome even brighter for the home folks.

Spring, 1976

Indians host SLC festival; linksters suffer with youth

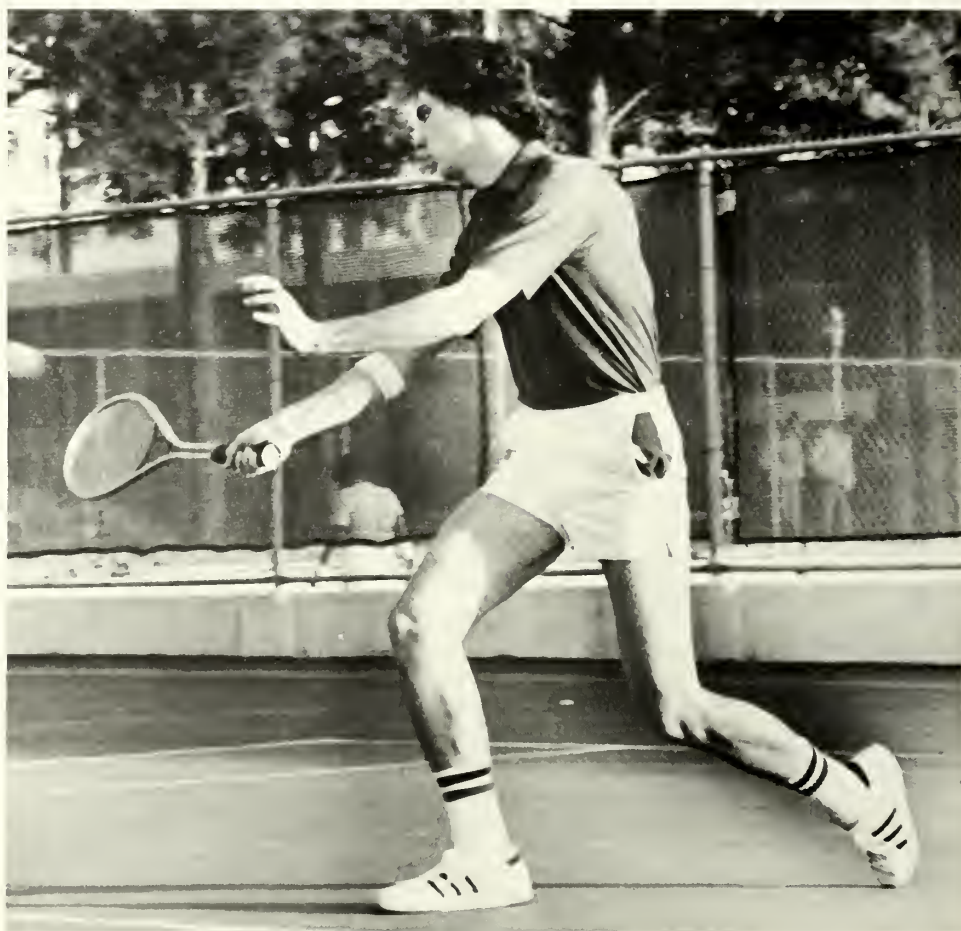

Inexperience and youth kept Arkansas State's golf squad from anything better than fifth place at the Southland Conference meet held in Shreveport, while conference track and tennis competition was beginning at the same time on the Jonesboro campus. A crucial series between the Indians and league baseball leader Lamar University headlined another facet of the week-long slate of athletic activity.

Indians take tennis fall, vault upwards in track

While Lamar University and the University of Southwestern Louisiana were busy dominating the Southland Conference tennis competition – and host Arkansas State was plodding through another last-place finish – the 13th annual running of the league track meet was having its own ups and downs. In both, there were surprises, but those predictables always emerged at the head of the pack.

All-Sports Trophy ends double championship year

From preliminary victories to a joyous team celebration following the mile relay – from the first pitch of the series to the winning hit in a third game that started as a meaningless contest – the sporting year at Arkansas State University was climaxed on May 1 with a 20-point track and field victory and a 3-2 win over the Lamar baseball Cardinals, wrapping up the 1976 All-Sports Trophy for Indian sportsmen. Two outright Southland Conference championships – football and track, aided by a second-place baseball finish – allowed ASU to outpoint Louisiana Tech and McNeese State for All-Sports honors in a banner sporting year in Indian Country.

Providing workshops for high school students was an important part of the summer schedule at ASU. Students from all parts of the state gathered for training in history, biology, journalism, and other subject areas. High school seniors attending the week-long journalism clinic earned one hour of college credit while learning the mechanics of newspaper production. During their free time, some students enjoyed the summer sun while trying their hands at golf.

May 29, 1976 – one of track and field's most outstanding accomplishments came to Arkansas State University in the form of home-grown Earl Bell's world record in the pole vault. Set in Wichita, Kansas, Bell's mark was ironically topped 24 days later in Eugene, Oregon, at the U. S. Olympic Trials – by Dave Roberts, using Bell's pole. Three Indians – Bell, sprinter Ed Preston and long jumper William Tate – were among the nation's elite in Eugene, and two – Bell and Preston – were selected for the further journey to Montreal and the Games of the XXI Olympiad.

Summer, 1976

Olympic participation becomes reality at ASU

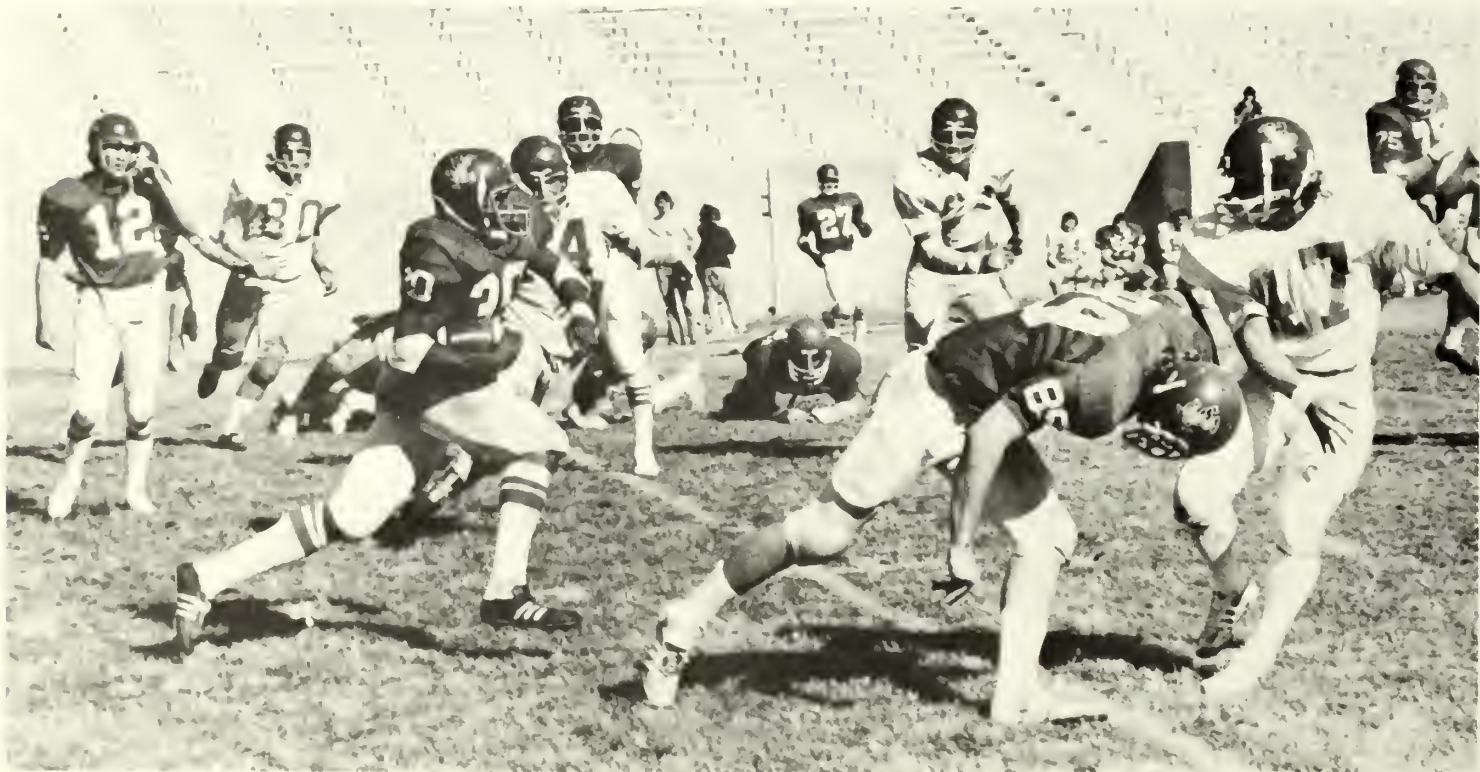

Rain hindered one and coaching decisions felled another, but Arkansas State University's two participants in the Montreal Olympic Games reported both enjoyment and fulfillment from their stay on the U. S. team. Vaulting in the rain, Earl Bell finished a disappointing sixth in the pole vault, but youth and an almost flawless style will keep his name on the international scene for another attempt in 1980. Ed Preston, chosen as a relay specialist, gave way to other U. S. runners in two relay races at the Montreal Games, but his run for the gold did not end in Montreal, either. And, with both returning to A-State for another year of collegiate track, what a better way to further spread their reputations than as cogs in the fastest-turning track and field wheel in America.

From the opening coin toss to a silent but true post-game banner – and after disappointing losses to San Diego State (24-14) and Indiana State (31-21) – the suddenly hapless Indians were no match for Southland Conference rival Louisiana Tech University. While new-found quarterback Bucky Layne exhibited some deft passing and slippery running, the majority of the game was all LTU. The Bulldogs dropped ASU's record to 1-3 with a rousing 27-12 trouncing of the defending SLC champions – a sort of sweet revenge for the once-almighty Louisianians.

All performances of the Arkansas State University speech and drama division are outstanding, but this one was extra-special. "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds" competed in the American College Theatre Festival state competition winning first place. The cast then traveled to Fort Worth, Texas to compete regionally. There were no places awarded in the regional competition, but the cast had the chance to be selected to represent the region in national competition.

After a disappointing 32-30 loss to Eastern Michigan University on the road, the Indians returned to the South – or at least a bit closer to home, romping over arch-rival Southern Illinois, 41-10, in the process. A-State's double-barreled running game and a pinpoint passing afternoon from quarterback Bucky Layne, primarily to wide receiver Orna Middlebrook, gave the Tribe its most convincing win of the season to date. Defensively, forced fumbles and superb pass coverage thrilled the sizeable ASU delegation, including the Marching Indians, throughout the non-conference contest.

Pokes wade past rain-soaked Tribe

Fighting the rain and a season full of enough disappointments as it was, the Indians sadly watched a 21-10 halftime lead dwindle away as McNeese State University stymied the Tribe, 24-21, for just over 2,000 rain-soaked fans in cold and empty Indian Stadium. Things were looking good for A-State partisans until bullish fullback Leroy Harris went to the bench shortly after the start of the second quarter with a deep hip bruise. Harris had already gained 130 yards on just eight carries – including an 85-yard touchdown ramble – before sustaining his injury. Sub Tommy Foulks performed admirably, but the Pokes, on their way to an eventual conference championship and an Independence Bowl berth, were not to be denied.

Harris & Co., defense post 31-0 Homecoming win over LU

Needing a win desperately to break the doldrum of losing in the rain and improve a 3-5 record, the Tribe bounced around the hapless Lamar Cardinals with defense and Truck No. 20 – in the human form of one Leroy Harris. When Harris was not running through, around and over the LU defense, ASU's own stop troops were thrilling the smallish Homecoming crowd with its best defensive showing of 1976. And with the win, the Indians kept alive fleeting hopes of at least a tie for the championship of the Southland Conference and a possible invitation to the inaugural Independence Bowl.

Charging Tomahawks host state tourney

Sporting the best record in Arkansas, the women's volleyball Tomahawks hosted the Arkansas Women's Intercollegiate Sports Association state tournament with hopes of winning a championship in only two years of intercollegiate experience. From the opening serve of the opening match through the trials of a not-so-great game midway through the double elimination meet – it seemed the Tommies were destined to win. Three All-State performers – Juli Vaccari, Vicki Nelms and Glenna Jo Driesel – were the main cogs in that fast-moving Tomahawk machine.

Appearing in Indian Fieldhouse, international entertainer Bob Hope made the first major presentation of the Arkansas State University Union Board a tremendous success. The "King of Comedy" entertained his audience with topics ranging from women's liberation to politics. As for his reasons for coming to Jonesboro, Hope explained that during election year he wanted to "let you see a comedian who isn't running for something."

Cafeteria hosts midnight meal

Flexible scheduling during final exam week for the fall semester at ASU enabled students to better take advantage of late night studying. Library hours were extended and two midnight meals were sponsored by the SGA and food services. On December 13, the cafeteria opened at 11:45 p.m. for a buffet breakfast. A much larger crowd than anticipated slowed the process, but all students enjoyed a hot meal. The following night a sandwich line was open and students were given a "survival kit" of fruits, cheese, and crackers as they left the cafeteria.

Indians, Tomahawks post opening wins

Under the watchful eye of first-year head coach Marvin Adams, the Indians began 1976 with a victory over Westminster College, while third-year mentor Kay Woodiel's Tomahawks opened defense of their state runner-up ranking with a rousing win over Arkansas-Little Rock. For the men, "Big Dan" Henderson was looking to again lead the way, while All-Staters Karen Carlew and Karla Birmingham paved the way for the ladies' first win.

1977 photography staff

Photography is the essence of any yearbook, and when we needed it, this group came through with flying colors. In no particular order, but from the immediate right and moving clockwise, the picture-takers for the Indian 1977 were: Warren Douglas, a regular Herald photographer whose pictures came in handy many times; Dennis Layer and David Cox, who divided time between them in the spring getting the rest of the photographers to produce; John Horner, who served as head photographer during the fall; Eddie Hurst, who was always there when we needed someone in a hurry; and Tom Manning, our illustrious advisor who kept both the photographers and editors in line. Not pictured are spring photographer Charlie Simpson and fall picture-taker Susan Manatt.

Backbone of The Indian

Indian 1977 editorial staff

The people who had the job of laying out the pictures the photography staff gave them, and who did a good job of it all year long, despite some long nights and cranky editorial staff meetings, were: (clockwise from the bottom) Beverly Long, the organizations editor, one of two staffers from Wynne, and one who did an excellent job after she learned the ropes of layout procedure; Nancy Danicourt, the unofficial and unpaid staffer who probably did more work than the rest of the staff combined, and for nothing; Alice Hedger and the staff of the News Bureau, who had the dirty work of laying out the class section to meet the first deadline, way back in November; Debbie Caldwell, the student life editor and another staffer from Wynne, who made the best of what she had; Todd Gurley, the spring sports editor, who kept the book supplied with pictures in tight spots (pictured receiving his favorite trophy, for winning an Indian Fieldhouse media free throw contest); and Connie Daws, the Greek editor, who did a superb job laying out the composite section and keeping everyone alive.

To say that the Indian 1977 was all fun and games would be an out right untruth – but to say it was enjoyable and, most of the time, fun, would sum up my feelings of this book.

What we tried to do with the book was present a chronological view of the things that happened in, around, on and through the Arkansas State University campus during this past year. Without the familiarity of sections to work with, the book was a bit more difficult for us to produce, but once we finally got our lists together on page numbers and pictures needed, it went pretty smoothly.

Only once did we feel the wrath of our advisor – but I suppose Tom was entitled to it when, at 6 p. m. on the night before our second 100-page deadline was due, we had completed exactly zero pages.

Somehow, we always managed to come out ahead, though.

To the photographers, I must leave one final note. Without the work of this group, which was sometimes not to be found and other times not to be tried, the Indians 1977 would have, of course, been nothing.

Several times, there were flare-ups, especially when they found one too many notes about covering one too many events in one too few days. Still, we managed to patch up our differences long enough and well enough to get some great pictures.

As for the editors, when the few that had not worked with this type of book learned enough about laying out pages from probably the worst teacher in the world – me – we didn't have much trouble with meeting deadlines. In fact, through some strange turn of luck, we didn't miss a single one, which was a minor miracle in itself.

Since the book is in a chronological order, there were times when something would happen that, for one reason or another, we had no pictures for. It was at times like these, most of which were concerned with sporting events, that the help of the Jonesboro Sun, the ASU Sports Information Office and, during the women's state basketball tournament, the Batesville Guard, came in handy, and I must thank Jim Graves, Jerry Schaeffer and Larry O'Dell for all the prints we used from each of them.

To my instructors, thanks for putting up with me on days after deadlines, when many times I didn't manage to make it. For the staff's instructors, too, thanks for the help, whether you knew you were helping out or not.

I suppose I'd have to say that working on the Indian 1977 was one of the most interesting things I've ever undertaken. Even bogged down with work in the SID office, on The Herald and in class, I managed to find enough time to do the things I was supposed to do – without causing absolute mutiny within the staff.

Even with the sleepless nights and my stubbornness, working on the Indian 1977 was real – and it was fun – but it wasn't always real fun. Actually, even on this publication, I'm glad I can say: I found it.
